

UNDER THE LASH OF THE WHIP

Constructive Criticism of Men and Measures, In the Hope of Correcting Errors and Evils.

Pray tell us why the great prohibition President Wilson should require a government permit to move whiskies from the White House? So much liquor has been emptied into the gutters we thought that the great Woodrow would give example to the public by emptying his. Not so. It is claimed that the liquor was presented to him. Judging from his careful treatment of it, indeed it was a very wise gift. The same applies to Ex-Sec. of War Baker. Woe unto ye, scribes and pharisees.

Perry Howard, the gumshoe lawyer from Mississippi, is said to be making overtures for the position of Assistant Attorney General of the United States. Upon what he bases his claims for that position we are unable to preceive unless it is that he is an excellent Uncle Tom and that he spent two months in Chicago on a vacation at the expense of the Republicans. How long, how long?

Last week in Madison Square Garden in New York City, a "gentleman" of German persuasion in a flamboyant speech made some serious charges against the black troops in German territory. The white press carried full accounts of the speech of this pro-German. The charges reflect upon the whole black race and had already been denied by the German women themselves. The white press will do well to remember that the black boys of America fought the Huns, and it is not exactly fair to come within our own gates and lie about and insult those who are related to them. It would be better to give an expose of heinous crimes committed by the white sons of the South.

"Job seekers to the right of him, job seekers to the left of him volleyed and thundered." We mean those Black Uncle Tom politicians around the throne of President Harding. If these men conscientiously were seeking to advance the interest of their race we would not complain, but they are the same old gang of political bandits who are looking for something soft for themselves. Their race is the most remote of their considerations. Notice will you that these office seekers are the same men who are always posing as leaders and yet have never done anything for the advancement of their people.

Some of the ministers of our race are beginning to fight Marcus Garvey tooth and nail. We notice that Bishop Smith repudiates the gentleman in the World's Work magazine for March. Mr. Garvey is at least awakening a new race consciousness and creating a new race solidarity. Both worthy achievements. It is not true that his followers are mostly West Indians. If it is true what difference would it make? The cause is the black man's.

"NOSEY" SEES ALL KNOWS ALL

NOSEY was peeking around in the loop learning his weekly lesson about human nature when he was startled out of his study by the honk of a powerful yellow Stutz roadster, which is a common sight on the South Side. This car and its goggled occupant was moving slowly down the east side of State Street, keeping as near the sidewalk as possible. Nosey recognized the car that was being played—the man in the car was looking for a weary, youthful female pedestrian that needed a lift. Nosey took to a taxi and followed and heard each suggestive cough made by the man to the fair passerby and saw that he was unsuccessful then night at any rate, but realized at the same time how this same car on many other nights disgorged many fair dames at the doors of the South Side cabarets. Oh well, a good car is an inducement to those that usually walk.

ONLY those that are on the inside get invitations to these pajama parties that are so popular on Wabash Avenue way. Well, they don't seem to want Nosey at these parties, but Nosey wedged his way in the back door and was present for most of the activities. Nosey was there when that doctor who follows these parties pretty close to give first aid came in dolled up in a pair of English cut pajamas with a pair of feet that stuck out so far in front of him that he could not keep them out of everybody's way or allow him to sit down cross-legged. The members of the party protested in a body and hastened to put on more clothes. The doctor finally got embarrassed and withdrew himself, followed by Nosey, who noted that he only put on his overcoat over his nightgown and Nosey also noted that he entered the apartment of the popular widow almost next door garbed thusly. This means that you can't tell just where they are pulling these pajama parties.

SOME of the South Side pawn shops ought to have a great deal of scandal and romance hidden on their dusty shelves. Nosey was standing idly by one of these romance chests almost directly under the three gold balls when he saw a lady practically pushing a dapper young man into the pawn shop, giving him the specific instructions to get that diamond ring or not to come out of there alive, because if he came out without it he would not live long after it to tell anybody else how to make money by letting him have the money from pawned jewelry. Well, Nosey followed the youth in the shop and he must have had faith in the determined little married woman's word that she would kill him, because he pawned everything except his shoes and box in order to raise enough money to get that ring. If the proprietor would have allowed him he would have gone out the back, but he delivered the ring and shivered up the street to borrow an overcoat. These Wallingfords don't always put through their schemes and then the fun begins.

EVERY TIME a certain little society lady wanted some spare change she told her "friend" that she wanted a pair of shoes. Nosey found out that the "friend" decided that she wore too many shoes and decided to go with her to a State Street store and pay for them herself. Of course, he had to walk on one side of the street and she on the other, as she did not want anyone to see her with this fair-haired, blue-eyed, red-faced man. Well, Nosey saw all of the plans blow up when the fair-haired gentleman crossed over and came up to her and entered the store together. The poor girl liked to have had a fit when she saw Nosey standing in front of the store and knew that he heard the red-faced one say, "If I am paying for shoes, I am going to see that you get shoes, and I will know that no one else gets that money." The gentleman certainly was getting wise to the lady's methods.

YOU NEVER CAN tell who you will see when you walk under the Elevated structure. Nosey bumped into that charming matron the other night under the "L" near 44th street using the best assortment of swear words that have ever greeted Nosey's delicate ear. So violent were her words that her male companion slunk off in shame. When the delicate matron turned to Nosey she greeted him with the sunniest of smiles and the sweetest words that could fall from the lips of a refined lady. Goldberg was right—"How Do They Do It?"
